

It takes a village to raise a PhD: Growing into the role of doctoral supervision

Supervising doctorates and other qualification theses is a challenge in terms of time, people and content. But the good thing is, you are not alone. According to LERU, it takes a village to raise a PhD.*

This series started in 2024 and will be continued in summer semester 2025. The series provides knowledge and skills you may need to create a creative inspiring research environment for your doctoral candidate and yourself
